Dan: per our earlier email exchanges, attached are the initial questions of APGA/AGA regarding the LCC spreadsheets distributed by DOE regarding the furnace rule remand. We anticipate that we will have additional questions by the time of the Nov. 7 meeting, as we are continuing our review; we also anticipate that the answers provided at the Nov. 7 meeting will inevitably lead to follow-up questions and answers in order to better understand the contents of these very complex spreadsheets. If there are any clarification questions about our questions that DOE would like to have answered before the Nov. 7 meeting in order to make it a more productive session, please contact us. In any event, we will be prepared to begin the Nov. 7 meeting with our questions being asked and answered. Thank you for your continued cooperation in this matter. Bud

Bud, we have a court reporter at all of our public meetings on rulemakings. So, we will have one at the Nov. 7 meeting and at a meeting on the proposed rule. In terms of the queue for questions, I spoke with John and he is happy to have your questions be first. Also, if there is need for follow-up, we will do so.

Thanks, Dan, for the heads-up. A few questions: Does the reference on page 5 of the notice to a court reporter apply to the Nov. 7 meeting as well as the post-proposal meeting mentioned in the preceding sentence? Also, should we assume that those that submit questions ahead of time will be first in the queue to have their questions answered (this could be important if time becomes a factor, given that the meeting is scheduled to conclude at 1 pm). Also, we are assuming that to the extent written questions submitted ahead of time lead to answers that require follow-up Q&A, that will be permitted in the interest of a full understanding of the agency analytical tools; please confirm. Thanks - Bud

Dan: thanks for the meeting confirmation; we are hoping for a full day to explore the technical issues associated with the spreadsheets, so I assume we will begin early. Also, it would be helpful if there is webinar capability at the meeting as one of our technical experts will not be able to be in D.C. that day. I assume the ground rules for the meeting will be set forth in the Federal Register notice. As for our draft questions, we are refining them to be as specific and useful as possible and will provide them to you early next week. Please call with any questions or comments. Bud

Kathryn, Bud, thank you again for your offer of space to hold a public meeting to discuss DOE's spreadsheets. Turns out we do not need to take you up on your offer. We have a room at DOE's headquarters on Friday, November 7.

I can answer a couple of these points – we do have webinar capability. Our building and suite are fully wheelchair accessible, I will check with our office manager to see if there is more to ADA compliance than that. We can configure our space to accommodate at least 80 people. To enter our building, visitors must show a government issued ID.

Will you pass this along to Dan?
