Bud, The LCC spreadsheets originally submitted to the DFR docket (EERE-2011-BT-STD-0011) were copied to the current Residential Furnaces docket (EERE-2014-BT-STD-0031) and posted on regulations.gov.

Revised spreadsheet:

Original spreadsheet:

As you'll see when you click on the above links, the docket titles cross reference each other.

Dan: thanks for the heads-up. My review of item 31 indicates that DOE did not include as part of the DFR record the DOE sensitivity analysis relied upon in the Notice (see 76 Fed. Reg. 67047-048 and note 21). If I am mistaken about this omission, please indicate where it can be found; if I am not mistaken, kindly supplement item 31 to include this sensitivity analysis. Thanks - Bud

Bud, We have included the 2011 DFR data in the Residential Furnaces docket (EERE-2014-BT-STD-0031) on regulations.gov.

Dan: as part of the settlement agreement in APGA v. DOE, No. 11-1485, DOE agreed “at a minimum to include in that record the data gathered for the direct final rule under review in this case ... concerning the impact on consumers resulting from the trial standard levels considered in the Technical Support Document for that proceeding for non-weatherized gas furnaces.” (Joint Motion at 6-7.) This data does not appear on the DOE web site for the subject proceeding (<http://www.regulations.gov/#!docketDetail;dt=FR+PR+N+O+SR;rpp=10;po=0;D=EERE-2014-BT-STD-0031>) . So, my question is how does DOE intend to implement this settlement obligation. Thanks for your attention to this matter. Bud
